Experience Orlando Live Endoscopy 2020

The AdventHealth Center for Interventional Endoscopy is pleased to invite you to experience Orlando Live Endoscopy 2020. This two-day symposium is designed to provide endoscopy nurses and technicians with a comprehensive education in interventional endoscopy. The symposium will have six components: live demonstrations, state-of-the-art lectures, breakfast sessions, interactive luncheon sessions, self-assessment – and most importantly, hands-on-training.

The live demonstrations will encompass ERCP, EUS, tissue resection, third space endoscopy, luminal therapies and bariatrics. State-of-the-art lectures will cover key topics in interventional endoscopy and will be followed by a lively Q & A session. Panel discussions have been incorporated where interesting cases will be deliberated with a special focus on techniques and new technology. Small group breakfast sessions will provide an opportunity for the delegates to interact with faculty in an informal setting. The hands-on training sessions will cover pancreaticobiliary endoscopy, tissue resection, tumor ablation, luminal therapies and endoscope reprocessing.

A world-class endoscopy program does not rely on just a few good people, it relies on a good team, which means the endoscopy nurses and technicians must be well-trained so that they can partner effectively with physician colleagues to achieve the best outcomes for their patients. With this objective in mind and in order to maximize your educational experience, a major focus of this symposium will be to teach critical procedural steps and technical nuances. A syllabus book will be provided to all participating delegates that will contain critical information relevant to the nursing aspect of endoscopy.

We sincerely hope that you will find Orlando Live Endoscopy to be of the highest educational value as well as an enjoyable and unparalleled experience.

Come join us in Orlando where the magic of endoscopy begins!

Learning Objectives

- Discuss recent endoscopic innovations and techniques and their clinical utility and effectiveness in disease management.
- Describe how to operate endoscopic accessories and effectively assist during a procedure.
- Discuss endoscope reprocessing and disinfection.
- Identify best practices in endoscopic treatment of medical emergencies and patient preparation for advanced endoscopic procedures.
- Discuss the importance of an interdisciplinary approach to patient management.

Symposium Overview

Developing a world-class endoscopy unit requires a world-class team. It is critical that physicians, endoscopy nurses and technicians partner to achieve this goal. This two-day symposium is being organized in conjunction with Orlando Live Endoscopy 2020; one of the largest and most highly ranked endoscopy symposiums in North America being held at the JW Marriott in Orlando (10-mile distance from the Nicholson Center).

This symposium will be comprised of six key components to provide delegates with a comprehensive education in diagnostic and therapeutic endoscopy.

- Hands-on Training
- Live Demonstrations
- State-of-the-Art Didactic Lectures
- Breakfast Sessions
- Industry-Sponsored Luncheon Sessions
- Self-Assessment

Hands-On Workshop

The objective of this workshop is to teach new techniques and refine existing practices in order to provide attendees with a comprehensive experience. Key areas that will be covered include:

- ERCP: wire exchange, cannulation, balloon/basket sweep, dilation, sphincterotomy, stenting, cholangioscopy
- EUS: anatomy & physiology, specimen handling, fiducial assembly, celiac plexus neurolysis, fluid collection drainage
- Colonoscopy: snare selection, injection, coagulation graspers, specimen retrieval nets, tattoo injection
- EGD: RFA, APC, glue injection, hemospray, bands, clips, suturing, enteral feeding tubes and stents, balloon and bougie dilation
- Endoscope Reprocessing

Live Demonstrations

Demonstrations will be performed by internationally renowned experts at AdventHealth Orlando and transmitted live. The live procedures will prepare attendees to comprehend the critical role they play in procedural outcomes. Our objective is to highlight the latest developments in endoscopic approaches to gastrointestinal and pancreaticobiliary diseases. Cutting-edge techniques and latest technology will be demonstrated in a practical manner to make it possible for participants to integrate this experience into their clinical programs. A major focus of the demonstrations will be on “when-to-do” and “how-to-do.” Live demonstrations will cover six major areas:

1. ERCP
2. Diagnostic and Interventional EUS
3. Tissue Resection (EMR, ESD)
4. Third-Space Endoscopy (NOTES, POEM)
5. Luminal Therapies (hemostasis, strictures)
6. Bariatrics

Breakfast and Didactic Lectures

Our aim is to create an ideal learning atmosphere where delegates can interact with expert faculty and gain first-hand knowledge in specific areas of interest. Twelve “how-to-do” breakfast sessions have been organized where teaching will be case-based, practical and technique-oriented. Additionally, key topics will be covered during the lectures and will be followed by a lively Q&A session. The handbook being provided to attendees covers key technical aspects, such as cautery settings, choice of accessories, technical tips and many other components in the practice of endoscopy.

Interactive Luncheon Sessions

Industry-sponsored luncheon sessions pertaining to endoscopic interventions will deliberate critical issues in patient management via video case presentations and audience interaction. On day two of the symposium, an interactive luncheon session outlining steps required to develop a successful endoscopy unit will be conducted with the participation of invited faculty.

“The case presentations, live demos and discussions with the international faculty and panel were simply remarkable. The educational content of the Orlando Live symposium is exceptional in so many ways, which is why it has gained wide global recognition.”
